US drones sighted over lair of Abu kidnappers

By Ed Gamboa in Jolo and Alvin Papa in Manila

JOLO, Sulu—RESCUEES HAVE reported seeing unmanned aerial vehicles (UAVs) flying over Jolo and nearby areas at regular intervals since the Jan. 15 abduction of three workers of the International Guarantee of the Red Cross (IGRC).

And yesterday, the military alerted shelling certain areas in the province, according to the residents who reported hearing a series of artillery fire.

The sightings of the UAVs have raised suspicions that US troops were secretly involved in the rescue of Saint Andrew's House, 38 Italian-Rugby Villa L. 62, and Filipino Mary Jovelyn, 37.

The three were abducted, said

Intel shuts down plant

Loss of 60,000 more IT jobs seen

By Miguel L. Ho

STRUGGLING WITH FALLING PERSONAL COMPUTER demand, Intel Corp., the world's biggest maker of microprocessors, will shut down this year its assembly test facility in Cavite that employs some 1,800 workers.

"The impact of the economic downturn on our business was more severe than we anticipated and the outlook is uncertain," Intel Philippines said yesterday in a statement.

The announcement comes a day after Intel slashed prices of a number of its chips and a week after it reported a decline in fourth-quarter revenue.

Arthur Young, chair of Socioeconomics and Electronics Industries in the Philippine Inc. (Socphi), said the plan to shut down Intel's Cavite plant was a "bad" event for the industry.

"Intel has been in the country for 35 years and has been a great contributor to the growth of the industry. It's very sad to see

Obama to close Guantanamo

WASHINGTON—PRESIDENT Barack Obama will begin overhauling national security policy on Thursday with actions to close the US military prison at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, initiate military trials of detainee suspects, and end harsh interrogations, a government official said.

Obama also appears ready to name a veteran politician to his special homeland security post. A senior Obama administration official said the president would sign an order to shutter the Guantanamo prison within one year. Critics around the world say the US naval facility violates US and international detention rights.

Take 2 for Obama and US Chief Justice

WASHINGTON—BY 25 SEC-onds, President Barack Obama became president again.

Chief Justice John G. Roberts II readministered the oath to Obama on Wednesday evening, one day after the two men stumbled over each other's words during the inauguration ceremony at the Capitol.

For their do-over, the White House began at 7:35 p.m. for a brief proceeding that was not announced until it was completed successfully.

"Are you ready to take the oath?" Roberts said.

"Yes," Obama replied. "And you're going to do it very slowly."

After a day's worth of chatter over whether the president had been properly sworn into of-ice—the juxtaposed a couple of weeks after each other being in-cessantly prompted by Roberts—advisors to Obama decided on Wednesday afternoon to try it one more time.

Lack of funds delays anti-TB program

MANILA, BATAAN—THE DISTRIBUTION of medicines under the P400-million tuberculosis control program of the Department of Health has been delayed since July 2008 and regional DOH offices and local governments are forced to cope by using their funds, reports reaching the Inquirer's bureau.

Under City order of the pilot cities of the TB control program, needed for last batch of medicines in November 2007, Mayor Genaro Mordona said on Thursday.

The July 2008 supply did not come, prompting the city government to launch P6 million worth of anti-TB drugs to sustain the treatment of TB people included in the program, he said.

The city at the approval of the last council, used the proceeds of its cigarette bonds from the Philippine Health Insurance Corp. (PhilHealth).

"It seemed that the program is being ignored, if the DOH is not committed in this program, as it does not, we will never achieve our TB eradication target by 2015," he said in Manila.

In his May 2008 DOH Central Luzon division, outlined the problem in the region.

Reports reaching him said the problem of delay in the procurement of anti-TB drugs is not only in Manila but in other DOH regional offices.

The DOH regional office used to get P20-million worth of anti-TB drugs annually in previous years to support more than 5,000 patients, Mordona said.

The delayed delivery to some delivery has been happening in other regions also, he said.

Reached for comment, a TB control program director at the national DOH office said, "We are aware of the problem and actions have been taken. Initial delivery of drugs has been done."

Another source at the DOH national office said the same office failed to follow up on the release of the funds with the Department of Budget and Management.

The delay in the program comes amid news of the adverse effects of the global financial crisis on the Philippines.

The administration of President Arroyo, who visited Congress for a P800-billion stimulus package to jumpstart the Philippine economy for the effects of the financial crisis.

Timeline of the DOH says, however, that her allies in the House of Representatives were more preoccupied with issues to amend the Governance Act of 2009, according to the commission's study. Finance Director, Inspector General/Assistant

Body of teen girl fished out of Pasig

By Joanne L. Arellano

THE BODY OF A FEMALE HIGH school student was fished out of the Pasig River yesterday morning in Manila.

When fished, the unidentified teenage girl fell a meter to top of the Makati High School, many were here and had a close encounter with a person carrying "Mami" around her neck.

PHI Gerry Pascual of the Manila Police District (MPD) homicide section described the victim as between 15 and 16 years old, 5'5" tall, slim and long-haired. She was wearing a light blue and red striped shirt, the left breast and had a tattoo on her left arm and on the ribs.

Case of death

Agencies said the cause of the girl's death is still unclear as it is possible that she was a victim of foul play.

He said the body appeared to have been heavily dumped up near the schoolyard, was near the swimming pool, and the body was found in the pool of the school's sports field.

Found her things

Police said the body was found at around 7 a.m. on the part of the Pasig River. Behind a concrete block building manufacturing firm at 245 Dela Roca Street, Pasig, the body was found.

Employer Armand Lamed was working when he saw the body. He said he saw the body in the swimming pool. He said he saw the body in the swimming pool. He said he saw the body in the swimming pool.

Lamed explained that the first time he saw the body was when he saw the body in the swimming pool. He said he saw the body in the swimming pool. He said he saw the body in the swimming pool.

He also said that an autopsy has been conducted on the body to establish the cause of death or to rule out foul play.

Homicide investigators are working with the Makati High School in Pasig, Manila, to determine the identity of the victim and to establish if the school has a missing student.

That Obama style

WHILE IT WILL TAKE SOME TIME before America and the world know just what the Obama substance, the past two days, the global village has been impressed with the Obama style.

Even in a country and a world that's hungry for hope and change, the style seems to suffice—for now.

There's not to say Obama is merely visual. Barack Obama, the 44th US president, is clearly a leader who can inspire and stir a whole country out of despair. He is a writer's president, given the eloquence of his speeches and the clarity of his thoughts. Talking about values, he said in his inaugural speech, "These things are old, but these things are true." Then he called for a "return to the truth."

Like Michelle, obviously, it's his inspiration. Her clothing style is clearly single-minded: opting for colors not typically associated with inauguration (except for white), going for new-looking or putting together (cycling down with olive green shoes and gloves), which is so her generation, not Jackie O's.

Unlike the criticism in her past and that she was during her husband's victory speech, fashion criticism seems to have left Michelle Obama's choice for the time. The creative editor of the New York Times said the dress was elegant and classic, Michelle Obama said.

While some agreed the Obama dress was more conservative than her own choice, then gave a nod to Obama's accessories—olive green shoes from American retailer J. Crew and matching jewelry from Jimmy Choo. Over his dress she wore a cardigan in brown and white with olive green shoes. This was clearly a woman who is afraid to wear olive green shoes.

At the inaugural ball she followed, some suggest some from the strategic First Lady, who

"I really believe it's a bit of both style and affordability," said Feng. "You could offer something cheap, but if the design isn't appealing, no one would measure how it."

Phyllis Sawett, Charles & Keith assistant brand manager in the Philippines, also cites the brand's Asian designers led by Keith Wong himself. One of Charles's top company's success goes for their ability to fulfill big trends in Europe and quickly come up with their own version.

"It's important for a fast-food chain to keep menu well-priced with meals from under $5 to $10," he said. "With the advent of the Internet, consumers are much more aware of what's out there. Charles & Keith has always been strong on design without neglecting quality and customer service."

A Chinese New Year Extravaganza Up North

With its exciting games, SM City North EDSA celebrates Chinese New Year in a grand way with an extravaganza of larger-than-life exhibits, entertainment as well as games, games, and prizes from some of the country's top companies and retailers. It is said that the Year of the Ox brings prosperity through hard work and hard work. Welcome the coming New Year - and add more luck - in a big way with SM City North EDSA's one-of-a-kind exhibits. At The Block, the Longest Thing exhibit unveiled on Friday, January 23, 2009 is a mall's effort to bring a symbol of Lunar New Year traditions, the traditional rice cake - when viewed from the top - will take the shape of lucky Chinese symbols.

At the newly opened store, shoppers will have the opportunity to meet the Lunar God of Fortune from January 23 to 31. Everything is a part of the world's first largest mall, as a giant Chinese Checkers game will be displayed in the Activity Area of the New Year South floor from January 24-29 with actual games being played from January 24-25.

Three top long table experts, Ma Hui, Allen, Jay Lee, and Professor Charles Chao, will also give shoppers tips for a prosperous New Year of the Ox.

Professor Charles Chao, on the other hand, will share his long and experience of the southernmost corner of the island, January 23 from 1-2 PM. A member of the International Institute of Chinese Medicine Studies, Inc., Professor Chao is regarded as one of the country's top long table experts.

He says that the ancient Chinese practice of placement and arrangement of space to attract wealth is a part of a bigger picture and only Good Feng Shui can help people who long for success. Feng Shui, he says, acts as a catalyst for self-improvement.

Ma Hui, who is a long table expert with shops at the Around The Block on Chinese New Year, January 23 from 2-3 PM, Ma Hui, who credits his triumphs to his personal adversity to the practice of long table, says that the study is about the placement of long table and how financial and personal success. She has been a professional for 15 years and says that the purpose of long table is to attract wealth and success, so that it "can be used without any obstruction in the body and the environment."

Copy of the traditions in the traditional Lunar and Chinese Dance that will go through The Block, the Main Block and the Annex.

Zits, pores and other skin oh-no's

RECENTLY I WAS surprised to see my helper's face dotted with zits. It was so funny I couldn't help but burst out in laughter. She explained the bad zits and used toothpaste to help it. What? So I gave her Maria Kadenia healing cream since that's what I like to use and it really works.

We all go through different skin issues, it is normal and most of the time, skin care is more cosmetic than it is my responsibility.

There are things you may do to help your skin appear clear or I was given Neutrogena's pore-refining products and was pleased with how my skin looked after several uses. There was a tingling sensation at first, but that was when I knew it was working. Also you may want to try at home remedies which I really love. Preparation when longer last using what is already available in the kitchen is so economic. First, wash your face to open pores. Fill a basin with hot water and cover your head with a towel to steam.

Next, place the washcloth on your face for about a minute. You will then feel a tingling sensation or a bit of a sting. It will cleanse and help shrink the appearance of pores. Afterward, to the rubbing, wash and get on to the cream. Gently stroke onto your face to tighten your skin. Apply medication after.

I have very oily skin and I love makeup. My friend once asked me and it looks so good because it's always there that I don't have to get it off.

I am guessing you have makeup that comes in cream form is not suitable for your skin. You can use water-based products. To get the dry effect using a powder blush, the secret is in the blusher or some times called blusher that could be found in powder form. After the blush this is involved in all over the face. Depending on your skin tone, it might turn white or brown. Check out L'Oréal's concealer at The Body Shop's concealer balls. That's the best.

It is easy to find. It's not your face anymore but wearing this product. Let me know how it works!

Why are there night and day moisturizers? Isn't it just skin care to use for both day and night?

It is more ideal to have one for day and one for the night. This is because skin is more active during the day than at night and so you can use it under makeup. It also should be non-comedogenic and absorbed by the skin quickly. However, the skin at night is heavier in cosmetics and thicker. This is because when we sleep our skin repairs, restores itself and absorbs whatever is applied.
